TYING 'LUCE' ENDS

Actresses Octavia Spencer and Naomi Watts discuss their new thriller "Luce." 2

JON PACK/NEON FILMS

BEST THINGS TO DO THIS WKND. 15

Naomi Watts and Octavia Spencer on their powerful new film, 'Luce'

The film hits theaters this weekend. PAT KING

People have a lot of reasons to be walking on eggshells these days. For some, it could be navigating conversations. Or in the case of safety in the wake of so many public shootings, people are right to be constantly suspicious and to hold any evidence of danger as an alarm that should be blared at its loudest volume. The new film "Luce," premiering this Friday, sets out to confront audiences with the issues of privacy, search and seizure, and privilege, all set in a place that may hit close to home for many American families: our school system.

The film, adapted from the play by J.C. Lee and directed by Julius Onah, follows the title character, Luce, played by Kelvin Harrison Jr., who was taken in by an upper-middle-class white family after growing up as a child soldier in war-torn Eritrea. Luce has grown up to be both an "A" student and an all-star athlete, but runs into trouble after he hands in an essay to his teacher Harriet Wilson, played by Octavia Spencer, that contains some troubling and potentially dangerous ideas. After Wilson alerts Luce's parents Amy and Peter, played by Naomi Watts and Tim Roth, they must decide whether or not to defend him or act on their suspicions.

For actors Octavia Spencer and Naomi Watts, the opportunity to delve into such a vibrant piece of storytelling that would allow the audience to carry on the conversation once the credits start to roll wasn't one to pass up. According to Watts, she initially signed on once she had discovered that Spencer was involved, but was blown away by the complexity of Lee's story.

"Octavia was already attached and that was a big draw card for me," recalls Watts, as I meet with both actors. "We had worked together before and I'm a big fan of her work as well. That made me read it right away and the minute I read it, I knew there was so much there. It made me think all day. I was walking around wanting to discuss it."

Spencer agrees, and agrees that the space that the film occupied in her mind after reading it was the main draw for her to sign on to the project.

"I had actually met with J.C. about another project and he asked me to read 'Luce.' Then, like Naomi said, once you read it, you can't get the characters and the story out of your mind," says Spencer. "I kept wanting to relitigate it in my mind and take it from different perspectives. Then I thought, okay, I'm thinking about this way too much. I obviously want to do it. Even though I get nervous about Harriet in a lot of ways, I really enjoyed everything about it."

The film plays the audience's ideals themselves, letting them hear from all sides of the argument regarding the place of privilege where Luce is coming from and the hopes and dreams that good-hearted people in his orbit wish to push upon him and protect. To Watts, that kind of active participation is what makes the film such a poignant and important work.

"I think it's very satisfying as an audience member to sit there and watch something and then realize. 'Oh, I'm involved in this story, too!'" explains Watts. "It doesn't just take place in the cinema. It's going to live in your mind and there's more for you to examine. Giving that much power to the audience and [having] that much faith in them, I think is incredibly satisfying. Yes, all of these characters are well-intentioned. They're not evil people, but they get caught up in their myopic viewpoints and [in] trying to control things. [They] create identities for the vulnerable — that being Luce. That's when things go a little wobbly because he starts pushing back and says, 'I want to be in charge of my own identity.'"

The film practically hums with intensity throughout its duration, and will be one of the most talked-about films of the year as well as surefire awards contender. The arguments presented in Lee's hauntingly timely narrative never lend themselves to solutions that are easy. All of the characters mean well, but their good intentions deserve asterisks next to them.

"All of those asterisks that you mentioned are really the ambiguities of life," explains Spencer. "The only people we know how the story ends [for them] are the people who are no longer with us. Every day that you live, your story changes. The truth and perception changes. That's what this movie is forcing the audience to do. You become active participants in this film. It's not a passive viewing. ... I love that there are loose ends, because nothing in life is tied up with a bow."

NYPD is offering a $10K reward for Brooklyn block party shooting

Police asked anyone to come forward with information about the mass shooting.

Police want answers after a Brownsville shooting took a person's life and injured 11 others over the weekend, and they're offering up cash to anyone who can help.

NYPD took to Twitter Wednesday to let the public know about a $10,000 reward. "Up to $10K reward for info leading to the arrest & conviction of the person responsible for the shooting that took place on 7/27/19 at approx 10:52 p.m. inside the Brownsville Playground in which 1 person died and 11 others were wounded. Any info, call @NYPDTips at 800-577-TIPS."

The shooting occurred right before 11 p.m. on Saturday, toward the end of Old Timer's Day, an annual block party featuring live music in the Brownsville area of Brooklyn. Assistant Chief Jeffrey Maddrey, Brooklyn North, NYPD explained that the annual Old Timer's Day "celebrates this community. It celebrates the people who live here in Brownsville, people who lived here and left and want to come back and reconnect with friends and rebuild relationships, and it really celebrates the values of this community."

The shooting occurred on the Brownsville Playground, which is located along Hegeman Avenue and Sackman Street.

The mass shooting had 12 victims, that were all between the ages of 21 to 55, five were female, and the other seven were male.

NBC reported that they all suffered from shots all over their bodies. The person killed was named Jason Pagan, he was 38 years old and was shot in the head.

Victims of the shooting were sent to Kings County Hospital and Brookdale Hospital.

It was reported that at the time of the shooting, there were about 100 police officers on scene. NBC reported that police needed to clear the crowd before bringing in stretchers to help those who were shot.

Police Commissioner James P. O'Neill spoke during a press conference and shared his thoughts on the shooting, "… so many good things going on in Brownsville, we can't let one tragic event define this great community."

As of Wednesday, there has been no arrests made, but police reported that they are looking for two suspects.

The Brownsville shooting is one of the eight mass shooting that occurred over the weekend, according to gunviolencearchive.org.

If you or anyone you know attended the event, police are asking for any photo or videos taken during the event.

If you are or someone you know has any information about this shooting, they are urged to call NYPD's Crime Stoppers Hotline at 1-800-577-TIPS (8477) or for Spanish, 1-888-57-PISTA (74782). If calling isn't an option, you can text tips to 274637 (CRIMES) then enter TIP577. You can also submit tips on Twitter and the website. Everything is confidential.

Pete Buttigieg, the mysterious forehead splotch, and Sen. Bernie Sanders during Tuesday night's Democratic presidential primary debate. GETTY IMAGES

Questions arise as to what was on Buttigieg's face Tuesday

letters@metro.us

At the beginning of Tuesday's Democratic presidential debate, Twitter started buzzing as soon as Pete Buttigieg began to speak. Unfortunately, it wasn't because of anything he was saying.

Rather, the question was cosmetic: What's that thing on Mayor Pete's face?

It was a small smudge on his forehead — a speck of something, a skosh of schmutz, maybe a stress-related zit. Some jokesters suggested it was a bit of salsa. (Buttigieg had a mini-viral moment earlier in the week, when he asserted it was OK to mix the Mexican dip with ranch dressing.)

The social-media buzz was so distinct that MSNBC's Brian Williams began the network's post-debate coverage by saying they would get to the bottom of what that thing was.

Finally, around midnight, Buttigieg's spokeswoman Lis Smith ended the mystery: "It was a gnat!" she tweeted. "Apparently a very gnatty debate — but unfazed as always Pete Buttigieg pushed forward."

On CNN's "New Day" Wednesday morning, host Alisyn Camerota asked Buttigieg about the smudge.

"All right, so our best guess is that it — there were these little, kind of gnats around," said Buttigieg. "Maybe I smooshed one and it got on my forehead. I don't know. I didn't know about it until after. That's the thing about having something on your forehead. But hopefully it didn't distract from the message about what's at stake in this election."

"It shows lightning-quick reflexes," said co-host John Berman.

"Well, you want to show that you can do many things at once in this election," said Buttigieg.

As for the substance that wasn't on his face, Buttigieg attracted good reviews for his performance Tuesday night, with most polls showing him near the top of the 10-person field.

> "All right, so our best guess is that it — there were these little, kind of gnats around. Maybe I smooshed one and it got on my forehead. I don't know."
> Pete Buttigieg

The erstwhile gnat now joins the "Live TV Political Schmutz" hall of fame, alongside Joe Kennedy's overuse of Chapstick before his State of the Union response and that white thing on Ted Cruz's lips during a 2016 Republican debate.

As for Buttigieg's comments on a salsa-ranch dressing combo, that controversy showed signs of raging into a third day.

Hal Prince, producer of some of Broadway's biggest hits, dead at 91

Prince's greatest hits include "West Side Story" and "Evita."

Harold "Hal" Prince, who won a record 21 Tony Awards as producer and director of some of Broadway's biggest hits of the second half of the 20th century including "The Phantom of the Opera," "West Side Story," "Fiddler on the Roof," "Cabaret" and "Evita," died on Wednesday at age 91.

Prince died after a brief illness in Reykjavik, Iceland, his publicist said.

Prince was famed for his dynamic collaborations with two composers, American Stephen Sondheim and Briton Andrew Lloyd Webber and had been a protege of legendary Broadway showman George Abbott.

Prince became a wunderkind producer in the 1950s with hits including "West Side Story," the groundbreaking re-imagining of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet."

He turned to directing in the 1960s with hits including "Cabaret," set in decadent Berlin amid the rise of the Nazis, for which he won the first of eight Tonys as best director.

He joined with Sondheim to create a series of sophisticated musicals in the 1970s, then teamed with Lloyd Webber for the blockbusters "Evita" and "The Phantom of the Opera," which became the longest-running show in Broadway history.

"He's the best director of musicals around by far," Sondheim, whose work with Prince included the 1970s musicals "Company," "Follies," "A Little Night Music," "Pacific Overtures" and "Sweeney Todd," said in a 1984 interview with Prince biographer Carol Ilson.

"He has a more acute ear than most producers. He takes it seriously and is more daring, imaginative and endlessly creative. He likes to take chances," Sondheim said.

In 1979, Prince directed two huge hits that opened within months of each other on Broadway.

In March, "Sweeney Todd" - the macabre tale of a murderous barber set to Sondheim's music - made its debut. In September, Prince brought "Evita" to New York from London, where it had opened the previous year, telling the story of Eva Peron, the magnetic wife of Argentine strongman Juan Peron, with Lloyd Webber's music.

Prince rebounded from a handful of 1980s misfires with his biggest hit. "The Phantom of the Opera" — the story of a disfigured musical genius obsessed with a young operatic soprano — opened in London in 1986, then took Broadway by storm in 1988.

"There is not a single scene in the show that does not have a surprise in it," Prince told Playbill in 2011 of "Phantom."

"Sometimes it's fire that you don't know is going to be there, sometimes it's a voice, sometimes it's a piano playing by itself, but there's always something. And sometimes it's a piece of scenery almost falling on a diva," Prince said. REUTERS

THE WHISKER POLICE

In this day and age, you'd think people would be accustomed to all kinds of variations in head and facial hair. Unfortunately, there are still idiots who will heckle you if your style is not to their liking. The fact that the styles that are heckled change over time makes it obvious that the problem lies with the hecklers, not the hecklees. (When I was in college many years ago, I was once actually heckled just for having a mustache!)
My own present style (mutton chops with connecting mustache and "soul patch") is admittedly quite unusual. Why does that make it wrong? I have actually received quite a few compliments on it. I have, however, had a couple of hecklers. One idiot told me he thought I had been watching too many movies. (How many is too many anyhow?)
To these jerks, I say:
Please pardon me the TERRIBLE injury I've done you! You're angry with me? Why? It's no skin off your back. Grow up already!
Yeah, I know. It's human nature. So are lots of even nastier things. That doesn't excuse them.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Bad Religion's Brian Baker on touring in the 'Age of Unreason'

The legendary punk band will be in town for two shows this weekend.

KRIS HAYES & PAT KING

At this point, you can pretty much visualize what a new Bad Religion album sounds like in your head before pressing play. By all means, this is in no way a bad thing. For 40 years, the Los Angeles punk band have remained the unimpeachable torchbearers for the brand of Southern California hardcore mixed with air-tight pop sensibilities that has inspired countless bands throughout the years. The band recently released their 19th album, "Age of Unreason," which finds them as ferocious and politically charged as ever. Metro's Kris Hayes, arguably one of the biggest Bad Religion fans you will ever meet, got the chance to speak with the band's longtime lead guitarist, Brian Baker, about the new album, changes in the band's lineup, and keeping the fire burning on the road after all of these years.

You've been making records with Bad Religion now through four presidential administrations. With Bad Religion being such a socially-driven band, does the creative process differ at all in regard to the political climate?
You know, actually it doesn't, and even more strange, the writing process has nothing to do at all with politics. I think that a certain tableau is laid by what's happening globally and that is, I guess, politically motivated. But Brett and Greg really are writing day-to-day experience, and sonically and lyrically things that they're interested in at the time the song was written. There's no grand plan. It's not like, "Well, okay, here comes the Trump record." It winds up being, you know ... there's definitely some criticism, I would say, lightly, of the current administration, but that's just a product of the time and when it was written. It's not a directive in any way.

When I listen to "Age of Unreason," I don't get that the writing is really bashing you over the head, sort of with a political message, necessarily. I mean, certainly some of the tunes, for sure. But that's an interesting response.
Yeah, it really is the same. I mean the record, even the timing of when records come out ... We make records when there are enough songs that everybody likes to make a record. And sometimes that can take a short amount of time, a year and a half. Or, in the case of this record, it took five years. I think it's because Bad Religion has the luxury of not really needing to have a new product out. I mean, we're not trying to break that new market. And so it kind of frees us up that the records come out when there's enough to say and that we think they're great.

Sure. So, do you find that with Bad Religion there's not really as much of a push to tour as there is, necessarily, for other bands?
Well, we tour because we like doing it. It's really fun to play this music, and in my opinion I think we're definitely the best band playing Bad Religion songs. And we basically, we tour the amount that we can without disrupting our civilian lives to the degree that this is no longer where it feels like a job. I mean, the privilege that we have to be able to do this, it's amazing. And the last thing I want to do is try to monetize it to some high level to make it not fun anymore. And I think our touring schedule reflects that. I mean, it's awesome to get to go to all these different countries, which I would never go to if it weren't for Bad Religion. And so we're just trying to, I think part of the longevity of the band is we've all been very conscious about having enough home time to balance it. And that's really the only thing we do. I mean, there's no push or pressure to do anything. I don't know if you know this, but one of the guys from the band owns a record label. [Original member Brett Gurewitz owns and runs the successful label Epitaph Records.]

Yes, I do. I do know that. And actually one of my questions was going to be if it's different being in a band where one of your members owns the label.
Well, I mean, all comedy aside ... really, no. I think that maybe within Epitaph there might be some sense from some of the staff like, "Okay, well this is Brett's band. So, you know, second prize is just a set of steak knives." But as far as our interaction, no. I mean, Brett's in the band. He doesn't like to tour, so he doesn't tour. He plays shows when he feels like it, when we're going somewhere fun or doing something fun that he wants to do, he does. Otherwise, he doesn't. I mean, it's very — again, no grand plan. No mapping it out. And I'm really happy that he runs and owns Epitaph because I think it's the best independent label on the planet. So it works out well.

To me, this record sounds like the band is really rejuvenated. You are working with new members Mike Dimkich (guitar) and Jamie Miller. What's it like working with those guys?
Well, it's great. Bringing new people is always a breath of fresh air. And in this case, especially with Jaime — when we had lost Brooks [Wackerman] who was just such a fantastic drummer and so technically skilled, and Jamie came in and Jaimie's able to do all of Brooks' stuff — it was more about, why don't we look at how these songs used to go? We kind of ignored the source material because we'd been playing this live act for so long. And we found out that a lot of our stuff was a little slower than we thought and just had more of a pocket that we just didn't really ... we were kind of overlooking. I mean, the 10,000th time you play the song "No Control," it's kind of morphed into something a little different.

As far as touring now versus touring in the '90s, what's that like? Is it different?
No, you know, it's remarkably similar. I think it's pretty much the same thing. I think we're just better at it now, and we're, I would say, a little ... we're much more streamlined. We've had people working with us who have been there since the '90s, and so this entire idea of traveling around and putting on these shows, the crew people are absolutely the most important part of it or this isn't going to work. And you know, we have some great people who've been with us for a long time. And also we've just learned how to do this. I mean, there's not a ... I mean, I think that maybe my and Jay's [Bentley] sobriety might have something to do with the tamping down of the anarchy. I think it's just ... we're just better at it.

Bad Religion will be playing two shows in the area this weekend: Friday, Aug. 2, at Webster Hall, and Saturday, Aug. 3, at Brooklyn Steel.

Island formed by earthquake disappears

Sequence of the birth and disappearance of Zalzala Koh Island. NASA EARTH OBSERVATORY

The sea recovers a baby island

After a 7.7 magnitude earthquake shook western Pakistan in September 2013, an oval-shaped island emerged in a bay near the port city of Gwadar. However, for the past six years, satellites at the NASA Earth Observatory have observed its disappearance into the sea. Today it is almost imperceptible. MWN

The brief history of Zalzala Koh Island

Zalzala Koh Island, which means "earthquake mountain" in Urdu (national language of Pakistan), was 20 meters high, 90 meters wide and 40 meters long. Its emergence is the result of a mud volcano, which formed in the area due to the movement of the Arab plate, which sinks under the Eurasian plate. MWN

Sri Lanka to offer free visas on arrival to boost tourism

Sri Lanka will offer free tourism visas on arrival to citizens of almost 50 countries, a government document showed on Tuesday, as it tries to woo back visitors after militant attacks on Easter Sunday.

Islamist militants on April 21 bombed churches and luxury hotels in Sri Lanka, killing more than 250 people, including 42 foreign nationals.

Several countries then issued travel advisories, undermining the crucial tourism industry. Foreign visitor arrivals in May fell 70.8 percent, the lowest since the end of Sri Lanka's civil war a decade ago.

A government document seen by Reuters showed the cabinet had agreed to scrap tourist visas, which typically cost $20 to $40 and are applied for online or at Sri Lankan embassies and consulates. Visa-free entry will be available to 48 nations, including China, India and the United Kingdom

"The offer will remain for six months and the government will assess the loss of revenue from visas after six months," an official at the Tourism Development Ministry told Reuters.

Tourism Development Minister John Amaratunga confirmed the measure to Reuters. He added that he expects the move to boost arrivals but declined to provide details. The ministry said it did not have an estimate of its earnings from visa payments.

Tourism was Sri Lanka's third-largest and fastest-growing source of foreign currency last year, after private remittances and textile and garment exports, accounting for almost $4.4 billion or 4.9 percent of gross domestic product in 2018.

Tourist traffic for the first half of the year was down by 13.4 percent.

The government will officially announce the offer at 4:30 a.m. GMT on Wednesday, the Tourism Development Ministry official added.

One of the annual highlights of the Saratoga meet, the Grade I, $1,200,000 Whitney Stakes, is set for Saturday (NBCSN, 5 p.m.), and no matter where you are in the United States you can legally bet on the race at NYRABets.com/MetroBet.

By going to NYRABets.com/MetroBet you can get a $200 new member bonus by using promo code METROBET in NYRA Bets' exclusive "Bet $200, Get $200" promotion!

Whitney breakdown

The Whitney Stakes attracted eight runners, five of which are career millionaires. An automatic bid to this year's Breeders' Cup Classic is on the line. Here is a look at four horses that MetroBet predicts will come up big on Saturday afternoon.

No. 4 THUNDER SNOW is the only two-time winner of the Dubai World Cup, the richest race in the world, but has never won in North America (4-0-1-2). That could change on Saturday at Saratoga. THUNDER SNOW was last seen rallying for third in the Metropolitan Handicap on the Belmont Stakes day undercard. Most handicappers surmised that the one-mile distance would be too short for him, and they were proven right. Trainer Saeed bin Suroor wisely stretches the son of Helmet back out to 1 1/8-miles in the Whitney Stakes. THUNDER SNOW has been working well over this course and will have the services of regular rider Christophe Soumillon. Expect him to sit just off the pace before making his move at the quarter pole.

No. 6 MCKINZIE has hit the exacta in 10 of his 11 career starts but has burned a lot of win money in four starts this year, posting a 4-1-3-0 record. He was a runaway victor in Churchill's Alysheba Stakes on Kentucky Derby weekend but lost a battle with Gift Box in the Santa Anita Handicap and Battle of Midway in the San Pasqual Stakes earlier in 2019. Last time out in the Met Mile, MCKINZIE incurred some traffic trouble and had to settle for second behind Mitole. Despite all the accolades in his Hall-of-Fame career, trainer Bob Baffert has never won the Whitney. Jockey Mike Smith's one and only Whitney win came in 1993 with Brunswick. MCKINZIE is a must-use in multi-race wagers but will likely offer little value in this heat.

No. 8 PRESERVATIONIST is a relatively new face to the handicap division despite being six years old. He's raced only eight times in his career due to various minor injuries. Trainer Jimmy Jerkens appears to have the son Arch in peak form based on his convincing score in Belmont's Suburban Stakes on July 6 over multiple Grade I winner Catholic Boy, which was his third win in as many starts in 2019. PRESERVATIONIST may try to take them all the way in the Whitney under Junior Alvarado.

No. 5 VINO ROSSO will be rolling late under John Velazquez in the Whitney. The Todd Pletcher trainee was last seen acing the Gold Cup at Santa Anita over Pacific Classic-bound Gift Box. Living up to his name, VINO ROSSO has gotten better with age. He already has a win over this course, as he took last year's Jim Dandy Stakes at age three. Pletcher and Velazquez have teamed up for three prior Whitney scores with Left Bank (2002), Lawyer Ron (2007) and Cross Traffic (2013). However, VINO ROSSO is probably best used underneath based on speed figures.

The play: $8 exacta Thunder Snow/McKinzie, Preservationist, $4 exacta Thunder Snow/Vino Rosso ($20) at NYRABets.com/MetroBet

Mets hold on to Thor, Wheeler at MLB trade deadline

Mets keep their big arms, create menacing rotation for remainder of '19.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

For the final two months of the season, the New York Mets' starting rotation will consist of Jacob deGrom, Marcus Stroman, Noah Syndergaard, Zack Wheeler and Steven Matz.

Brodie Van Wagenen stood pat after acquiring Stroman from the Toronto Blue Jays on Monday, holding on to Syndergaard and Wheeler past Major League Baseball's 4 p.m. ET trade deadline on Wednesday.

Wheeler, Syndergaard and closer Edwin Diaz had been regulars in trade talks throughout July. But Van Wagenen made it known that an offer would have to blow him out of the water for a deal to happen.

While Syndergaard is under team control through the 2021 season, Wheeler will be a free agent this winter, which made him a cheaper and more realistic trade target.

Wheeler has been inconsistent this season following a torrid finish to his 2018 campaign. Still, he was a highly sought-after arm at the deadline even with a 4.71 ERA in 20 starts. The Mets were in contact with as many as nine teams — including the Yankees, Astros and Rays — regarding Wheeler as late as Wednesday morning, per MLB Network's Joel Sherman.

It presented Van Wagenen with his pick of the litter in an attempt to get the best return possible for Wheeler, but none were good enough.

Any dramatics involving Noah Syndergaard evaporated rather quickly on Wednesday.

Syndergaard learned that he would not be traded on Tuesday night before the Mets' extra-inning win over the Chicago White Sox, as revealed by Sherman just five hours before the deadline.

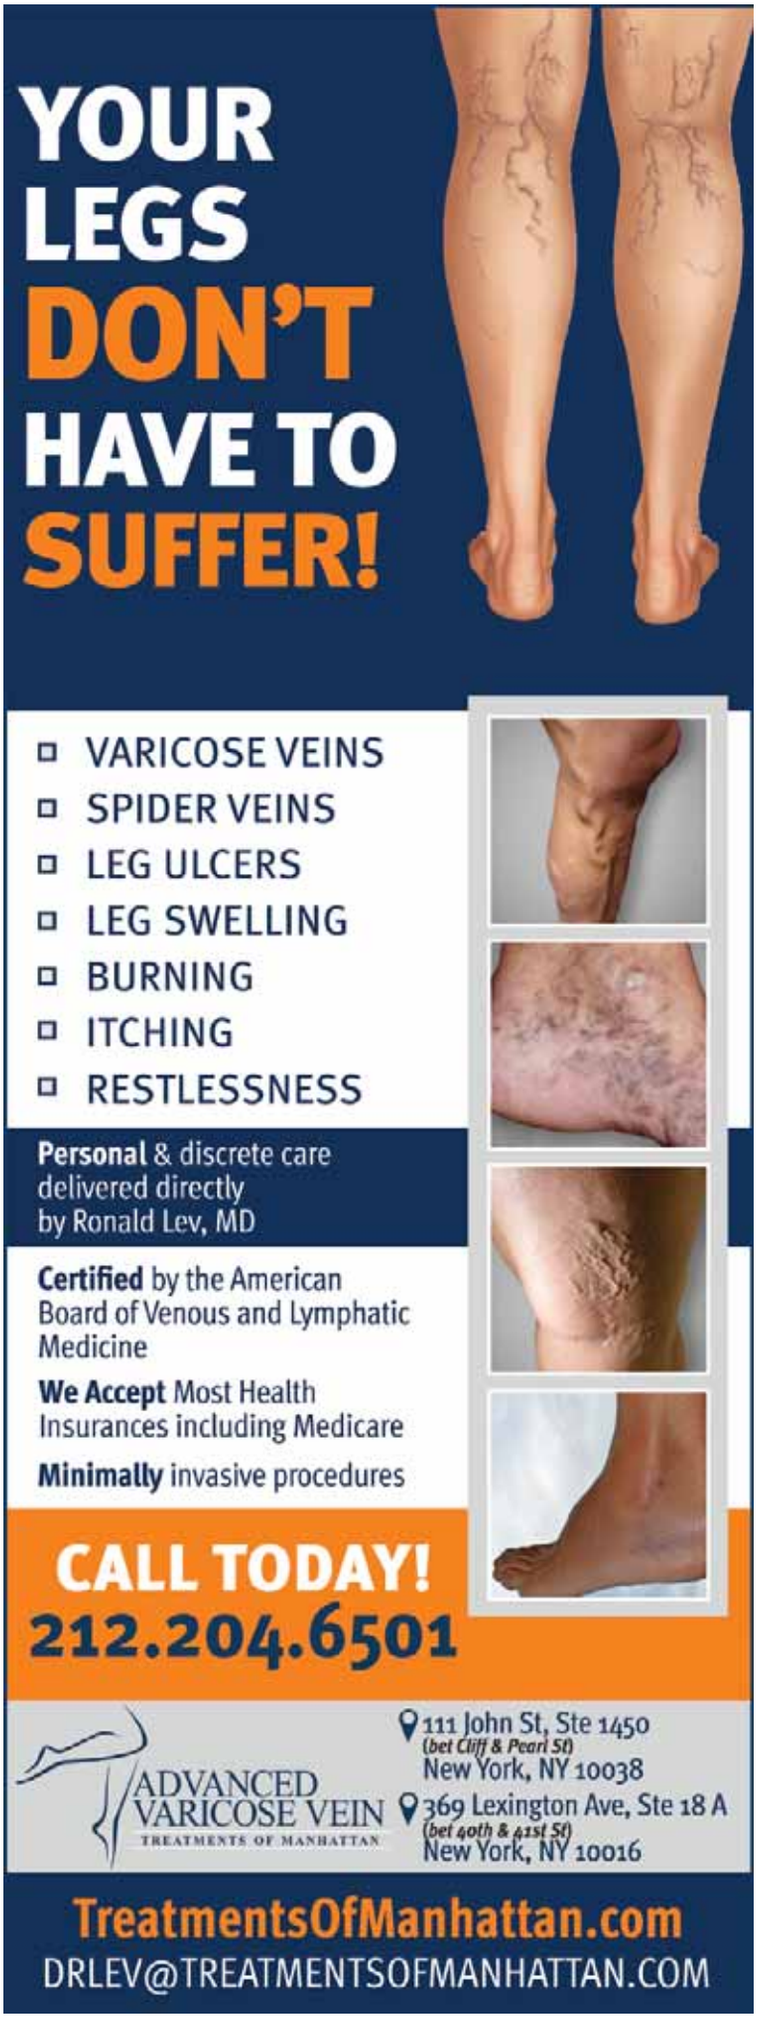
With that confidence, he went out and pitched a gem of a no-decision, racking up 11 strikeouts in 7.1 innings of work.

The right-hander nicknamed "Thor," along with Wheeler, is now secure in a Mets rotation that looks plenty menacing on paper with the addition of Stroman.

The former Blue Jay picked up his first All-Star Game nod this year with a sterling 2.96 ERA in the American League. He's under team control through the 2020 season.

With the dust now officially settling on a wild month, the Mets are surely keeping an eye on contending in 2020. However, the book is still out in 2019.

A strong start to the second half has the Mets within touching distance of the second National League Wild Card spot, though several teams lie ahead of them in the standings.



Yankees whiff at trade deadline

Cashman can't come up with starting-pitching help for Yankees.

The New York Yankees' pursuit for starting pitchers came up empty at the trade deadline as they were unable to sign a difference-making arm.

It's one of the most disappointing trade deadlines in recent memory as General Manager Brian Cashman could not find a way to address a glaring need.

The Yankees were connected with numerous big-name trade targets throughout the summer. But when the time came to get a deal done, nothing stuck.

A pair of fourth-place teams made some of the largest splashes at the deadline. The Mets picked up Marcus Stroman from the Blue Jays while the Reds came away with Trevor Bauer from the Indians.

Both righties were connected to the Yankees at some point in July.

They also whiffed on Mike Minor of the Rangers, Madison Bumgarner of the Giants, and Zack Greinke, who was traded at the last minute of the deadline to the Astros.

All three had the Yankees listed on their respective no-trade lists.

During the final days of the deadline, the starter with the best chance of heading to the Bronx was Greinke's Arizona teammate, Robbie Ray. The right-hander does not provide the same kind of punch that Minor, Bumgarner, or Greinke would, but rumors swirled that Cashman would give up promising young outfielder Clint Frazier and three prospects for Ray.

In the end, there was little progress made as the deal was declared dead approximately two hours before the deadline.

Cashman remained staunch in his desire not to trade top pitching prospect Deivi Garcia, who was apparently on the wish list of most interested parties.

The Yankees made just a single move on Wednesday, acquiring minor-league pitcher Alfredo Garcia from the Colorado Rockies for reliever Joseph Harvey.

Garcia, 20, is a left-handed starter who is 3-10 with a 6.00 ERA in 22 starts at the Single-A level.

That doesn't do a single thing to help their pursuit of a championship this year.
